School board members defend secret sessions

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
The Hancock County School Board Wednesday morning for the third time this year met in executive session apparently in violation of the state Open Meetings Law.

After the meeting concluded, several members of the board took issue with The Sea Coast Echo referring to certain of the board's closed sessions as apparent violations of the law.

The board met in closed session Wednesday for one hour and 20 minutes to discuss the district's 1982-83 fiscal year budget.

District employees including some office personnel and school principals attended portions of the secret meeting.

Board members and Superintendent of Education Billy Sills attended the entire closed session where no apparent formal action was taken. The board meeting formally concluded just after the executive meeting.

Then, Board President Monvel Cuevas and Board Members George and Louie Ladner presented arguments supporting the secret session.

Cuevas and George Ladner both said the closed budget meeting could have included discussions of possible firing or hiring of personnel which is allowed to be considered in executive session by state law.

Cuevas also argued that topics discussed in the closed session would not be appropriate for publication and would cause problems for the board in making various budget decisions.

Louie Ladner said it is the opinion of Board Attorney Joseph Gex that closed budget discussions are allowed by state law. Gex did not attend the meeting.

Ladner also feels recent newspaper stories have unfairly portrayed the board and that turning its actions as 'apparent violations' leads readers to believe there are actual violations by the governing group.

The board's previous questionable secret session occurred at a Saturday morning meeting when the board met in executive session to discuss hiring a Hancock North Central Junior High School principal, the district transportation budget and finances in general.

At an April 28 meeting, the board discussed a district classroom building program and finances for the project in a secret session.

In other business at the 9 a.m. Wednesday meeting at the Dan M. Russell Sr. Memorial Youth Court Center, the board in the open portion of the meeting:

—Approved a recommendation by Sills and Woodrow Ladner, who are members of Transportation Committee, to increase mileage fees for use of district school busses for field trips and special events from 25 cents to 50 cents up to 100 miles, 75 cents-per-mile for trips of 100 miles or more, and 75 cents-per-mile for all out-of-state trips to and from point of origin;

—Authorized District Transportation Clerk Erlene Carter to be central purchasing agent for all items for that department as recommended by Sills and Ladner.

Bond money sought for White Cypress man's jail release

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Attorneys representing a White Cypress Community resident being held in Hancock County Jail in Bay St. Louis are attempting to raise money to meet a recently reduced bond for their client.

Joseph W. Perry, 48, of Route 1, Box 325-C, Pass Christian has been held in jail almost four weeks after his June 7 arrest at Stennis International Airport by a host of heavily-armed local, state and federal law enforcement agents.

The law enforcement officials arrested Perry based on a National Crime Information Network bulletin which reported he was wanted in connection with a 1977 robbery of a Michigan Secretary of State branch office in Birmingham.

If bond is not posted and Michigan does not follow through with extradition proceedings, Perry will be due for release early next week.

Attorney Henry Cook III of the Bay St. Louis law firm of Cook, Tucker and Sharp Wednesday afternoon revealed Place Two Circuit Court Judge J. Ruble Griffin in Gulfport Tuesday afternoon reduced Perry's bond to $5,000.

"Hopefully we will be able to raise money to post bond soon," Cook stated.

"The requirements are such that a bonding company wanted us to put up half the bond amount and then have someone sign for the full amount. Normally on a $5,000 bond you only have to post $500," the attorney explained.

"We've been talking to several people about providing this money and some of Perry's friends have stopped by my office offering assistance, but we're trying to get one person who will be responsible for the entire amount," he stated.

Cook added that some $2,500 has already been raised toward the bond amount.

Cook noted Perry refused to waive extradition to Michigan upon his arrest and feels Michigan may not file extradition proceedings against his client.

Investigator Alvin Ladner of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department Wednesday afternoon said an extradition rendition notice has not yet been sent here for Perry's return to Michigan.

Jane Sharp of the law firm Monday explained since Perry refused to waive extradition, Mississippi law requires he

Hospital personnel work to save life of Bay accident victim

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Emergency room personnel at Hancock General Hospital in Bay St. Louis Wednesday afternoon were working to save the life of a New Orleans man pinned in his overturned station wagon in the US-90 eastbound

St. in Bay St. Louis at the Dunbar Avenue intersection. The station wagon then crossed the highway and rolled over on its side.

A hospital spokesman said the New Orleans man, identified as a New Orleans man, was pinned in his overturned station wagon in the US-90 eastbound

Chief Brenda Anderson of the Bay Auxiliary Police Department late Wednesday reported the New Orleans man was driving a station wagon west on US-90 at about 30 mph at a high rate of speed when it apparently struck the front of a pickup truck driven by Burton D. (Flip) Johnson of 110 North Second

Mobile Medical emergency medical technicians and Bay Fire Department firefighters worked feverishly to free the man pinned in his overturned station wagon.

The Jaws of Life were utilized to eventually free the New Orleans man from the vehicle.

No citations have yet been issued in the accident, Anderson added.

Responding to the accident scene were Patrolmen David Kenny and Earl Cox, both of the Mississippi Highway Patrol; Chief Douglas Williams, Anderson and Patrolmen Jim Clark, George Weatherly, Murray Ladner and Bob Butler, all of the Bay Police Department; Deputy Nathan Hoda and Investigator Delbert Seay of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department; the firefighters; and EMTs.

Lockheed's NSTL employees marking company anniversary

Some 75 NSTL Lockheed employees this year join another 75,000 Lockheed employees throughout the world in celebrating the 50th anniversary of the large aerospace corporation which was reorganized under its present charter in June 1932.

With such air pioneers as Robert Gross, Lloyd Stearns, Thomas Fortune Ryan, Walter Varney, Carl Squier, Cyril Chappellet and Bob Walker as founders, the newly formed company struggled through the depression to emerge as one of the world's foremost aircraft companies. In World War II, Lockheed P-38 Lightnings, Hudson Bombers and Constellation transports helped bring down the Axis powers. By early 1944, Lockheed's XP-80 fighter plane started America toward the jet age.

Today, nine operating companies produce such military systems as the Trident Missile; the C-5A, C-130 and C-141 military air transport planes; the S-3A and P-3C Navy antisubmarine planes; the Navy's Mark V gun-fire control system; and a variety of tactical weapons. The L-1011 Starliner is one of the most advanced civilian airliners in the world, and Lockheed engineers and scientists are working with NASA and other government agencies for space and environmental protection and development of our natural resources.

Providing manpower resources for U.S. Government agencies is, perhaps, a lesser known function of Lockheed. Their building aircraft and missiles. This is a major business line, however, and represents a substantial investment of engineering and scientific talent by the company. Lockheed Engineering and Management Services Company, Inc., for example, is wholly dedicated to the services business.

Formed on December 31, 1979, this subsidiary of the Lockheed Corporation employs nearly 3,000 people in five states and in West Germany. Major support contracts are held with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at the in Maryland; the National Space Technology Laboratories in Mississippi; the Johnson Space Center in Texas; the NASA White Sands Test Facility in New Mexico; the U.S. Army's White Sands Missile Range; and the Environmental Protection Agency in Las Vegas, Nevada.

The 72 Lockheed employees at NSTL in Hancock County are currently providing data acquisition, sensor design and development, software development, ground truth, computer maintenance and operations, and data processing services in support of the various remote sensing projects being conducted by NASA's Earth Resources Laboratory.

Highway Patrol names Internal Affairs chief

Investigator Donald L. O'Cain has been appointed director of the Mississippi Highway Patrol's Internal Affairs Office, Chief Donald Butler reported.

O'Cain, 49, will head a special unit charged with investigating complaints or allegations of wrongdoing lodged against members of the Department of Public Safety.

The Magee resident began his career with the highway patrol in 1966. He served as a trooper until 1980 when he was appointed a criminal investigator.

O'Cain replaces Gordon Kennedy, the former director, who was promoted recently to chief inspector of the highway patrol's central region.

O'Cain will have an important and tough job, Butler said. "Internal Affairs must thoroughly check complaints filed by anyone against officers or other employees of the Department of Public Safety."

Butler said the job is important because it assures the public that the department does not tolerate harassment, undue use of force or misconduct on the part of troopers and protects troopers from unjust or unfounded accusations.

O'Cain assumed the directorship June 23. He is married to the former Linda Stringer. The O'Cains have one daughter, Jacquelin Rene.

O'Cain attended Holmes Junior College and the Law Enforcement Institute at Louisiana State University. He is a member of the Mississippi Air National Guard.

State employment office completes salary survey

The Mississippi Employment Security Commission has completed its 1982 Salary Survey, which presents salary information for almost 700 occupations across the state.

In occupations common to all responding industries, the survey shows that industrial engineers are the highest paid employees, averaging an average of $36.87 per hour.

They are followed by data processing systems analysts earning $30.85 per hour and office managers earning $28.87 per hour. The first two occupations have been tops in the scale for the past two years.

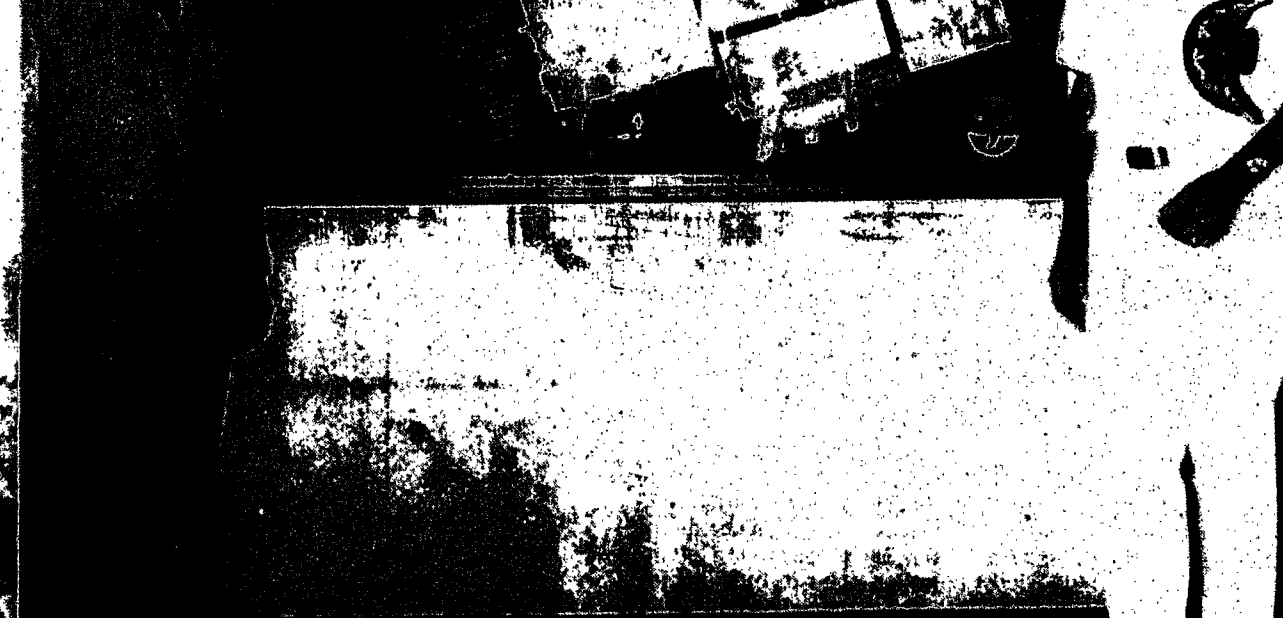

The lowest paid common employees are janitors, who earn an average of $3.87 an hour.

File clerks come next, earning an average of $4.16 an hour, followed by telephone operators and receptionists, earning an average of $4.16 and $4.51 an hour respectively.

These four occupations were also the lowest paid in both the 1980 and 1981 surveys.

The survey not only outlines salaries for occupations common to all industries in the state, but also provides salary information for occupations in the state's major industries.

Information for occupations in the state's major industries is presented in a separate section of the survey.

FEATURED AT REGIONAL AIRPORT TERMINAL, executive director, Gulfport Biloxi Regional Airport Authority and Captain Charles H. Bassett Jr., USN, commanding officer, Naval Oceanographic Office, unveiled a full-color, backlit, NAVOCEANO exhibit recently installed at the new airport terminal. Director Ford suggested the installation in recognition of the contribution of NAVOCEANO's 1,000-plus civilian and military employees to the airport and the local economy. The office controls an annual budget in excess of $120 million and operates 12 oceanographic ships and three aircraft to gather environmental data to support worldwide naval operations.

Ancient preservation of foods by drying still useful method

For thousands of years, people have dried fruit to preserve for leaner times.

Eleanor B. Coats, food and nutrition specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, says preserving food by drying is still useful, convenient, inexpensive and needs less storage space.

"Basically, drying preserves food by removing enough moisture from food to prevent decay," Coats says. "Drying requires a method of heating the food to evaporate the moisture and removing the water vapor formed."

Selection of the produce is an important step in the preservation process.

"Select sound, ripe, firm fruit that has ripened on the tree or vine," Coats recommends. "Wash fruit to remove dirt and insects."

Preparation is the next step in the process. Techniques include washing, peeling, coring and slicing. Coats says that during ripening, the fruit's natural enzymes will continue during drying, and that the fruit's natural enzymes will continue during drying, and that the fruit's natural enzymes will continue during drying.

Cooking up a storm

By Katy McGuire Caire

The barbecue is as traditionally American as apple pie—perhaps even more so on the Fourth of July when, you may be sure, the smoke signals fly all along the Coast.

In fact George Washington mentioned barbecues in his diary, and though the Father of Our Country referred to large outdoor gatherings, political or otherwise, at which meat roasted over an open fire was traditionally served, our barbecue feasts of today range from small gatherings around a small fire to lavish displays and fancy equipment.

In today's inflationary times, also, there won't be many of us roasting huge cuts of meat and such...but there are many other tasty ways to celebrate...chicken, hamburgers, the cheaper cuts of meat, well marinated beforehand...and so on.

And seafood, especially seafood! We often take advantage of the succulent seafood right at our doorsteps, so to speak, and much of it is available just for the effort of seeking it out with line or net or such, with the extra dividend of a good time along the way. And, when we don't, there's often an offering from a generous friend who's had a lucky day!

What charcoal does for seafood is incomparable, and so fond are we of the combination that I often "charcoal bucket" small amounts when I'm too lazy to fire up the larger grill. Delicious!

Sometimes I grill or bake the fish or shrimp or crabs in foil atop the grill, at other times I use the grill baskets, and at still others I lay the fish or whatever directly on the oiled grill. It all depends! So here are a few ideas:

BARBECUED CRABS

Marinate raw, cleaned crabs (break the bodies in half, of course) in barbecue sauce of your choice (we prefer a simple melted butter, chopped parsley, white wine, dashes of Tabasco sauce, lemon, pepper, sauce mixture).

Put the crabs on the grill, brush with the sauce...and watch them, for as you know, fish, crabs and shrimp cook quickly, and the cardinal sin of seafood cooking is overcooking!

SHRIMP ON SKEWERS

Thread large, unpeeled shrimp on oiled skewers and grill a few inches (say three inches) above the coals, for four or five minutes a side, brushing the marinade of your choice over them. It's less messy to shell the shrimp ahead of time, but I leave the shells on, as the shrimp are juicier, and I like the flavor which the shells impart. If you feel you must shell them ahead, at least leave the shell on the tails for easier handling.

FISH ON THE GRILL

Clean and dress several small trout or other fish. Brush with melted butter and lemon, and sprinkle pepper and salt inside and out. Wrap securely in foil, bringing ends up to make a package, cook on the grill for about 10 or 15 minutes per pound, and serve two of the trout per person, with additional lemon quarters. (I also add dashes of Tabasco.)

An easy, good seafood marinade: Combine a cup of beer, a couple of tablespoons of Worcestershire sauce, a goodly splash of Tabasco and a tablespoon of fresh lemon juice with two-thirds cup of oil and one-third cup of vinegar, the latter seasoned with pepper, salt, herbs of your choice.

REAL VIEWS ON REAL ESTATE

UNDERSTANDING BUY-DOWNS

QUESTION: We have looked at new homes in a subdivision and like them very much. The builder has told us that if we will pay the asking price, he will buy-down the interest rate to 13 percent. Can you tell me what he is talking about? F. O. Natchez

ANSWER: Dear F. O.

The builder is attempting to make the purchase of one of his homes much more attractive, so he is willing to "buy-down" the would-be current interest rate for two or three years.

For example, the current rate of 16 percent might be offered to you for 13 percent for the first two years of the loan repayment.

At the end of the two years the interest rate will be adjusted to the then-current interest rate. If at that time the current rate has increased, then of course your monthly mortgage payment will have to increase.

Have a question?

Call your library!

In Bay St. Louis

467-5282

A buy-down is in essence a price reduction, except that rather than a cash discount, such as is currently offered with new automobiles, the reduction is offered as a form of financing the house.

In recent years builders have discovered that more and more buyers are extremely conscious of monthly payments and are more concerned with what it will cost per month than overall price.

In addition, with high interest rates many buyers are unable to qualify, given guidelines used by lenders, and are thus unable to buy.

Thus, a below market interest rate partially subsidized by the builder during the early years is a strong selling point for new homes.

Before buying a home with a buy-down, be sure to determine if it is in fact a discount. For example, a home priced at $70,000 with a 12 percent rate for the first three years may actually be a $65,000 home. If this is the case, then you are paying a higher price for what appears to be a lower interest rate.

One thing you might do is to compare the price of the house you are interested in with similar homes on the market. If the prices are close, then the buy-down may be financially wise. In addition, you should also estimate the dollar value of the buy-down. Calculate the difference in monthly payments between the lower interest rate and the current rate over the buy-down period.

The builder may take less for the house if he does not have to buy-down the interest rate; therefore, in the long run you could be better off paying the current rate.

A lender will be happy to explain buy-downs to you. For answers to your questions, write Dr. Dennis Toshi, P. O. Box 295, University, Ms. 38677.

Money Talk

By Norine Barnes

When budgeting, think in terms of income vs. outgo. Determine your annual disposable income. This is the amount you have left after all deductions are made from your paycheck.

Do not anticipate income you don't yet have, such as a raise or year-end bonus. Count only what's certain. Look up last year's tax statement—it will give you an idea how much income you have been living on.

List your expenses for the coming year. As best you can, reconstruct what you spent last year. Another way to come up with a list of expenses is to keep a detailed record for several weeks of where you spend your money. This does not have to be continued once you have a good idea of expenses. Subtract expenses from income. You now have a realistic picture of your finances. If you still have money left after expenses, you are doing better than most people.

But if you are not one of the lucky ones, your expenses will outweigh income; in that case, some adjustments will have to be made quickly.

Reducing expenses is probably the hardest, and you will find out that most of your costs are fixed and are not easily changed. What you can adjust though are day-to-day expenses, such as entertainment. If you have two cars, you may have to sell one in order to balance the budget and plan for your goals. Trimming expenses will require all your money management wisdom. Helpful hints include comparison shopping for lowest prices.

You may have to re-analyze your lifestyle. Decide which items and goals are most important and then set priorities. But don't cut out all the fun. Chop expenses elsewhere.

Denying all the luxuries will discourage you and your family and make your spending plan impossible to follow. Remember a budget is a guide to spending, not a strait-jacket. Don't eliminate savings.

You need extra money not only for long-term goals but for emergencies. Five percent of your take-home pay should be your minimum goal.

A sound but simple plan will make you feel more comfortable about money and allow you to plan your future.

Without a plan, you cannot realistically hope to achieve your goals.

Babe Ruth contest winners announced

Seven Bay St. Louis Babe Ruth baseball players took home honors at a recent hit, run and throw competition conducted at Bay High School stadium recently.

The competition, sponsored by French's Mustard, is national in nature.

Three categories; base running, speed, accuracy throwing and distance hitting were included in the competition. Overall winners and runners-up in the 13, 14, and 15-year-old divisions were awarded plaques.

Jerry Head of State Farm was the overall winner in the 15-year-old division with Darrin Smith of Seals Dry Wall the runner-up.

Jeff Smith of Alcan Cable captured the 14-year-old overall division with Randy Carver of American Legion earning the runner-up slot.

David Pitalo of American Legion Clement R. Bontemps was the 13-year-old winner with Brian Laneaux of Hancock Bank the runner-up.

In the 15-year-old accuracy throwing event, Darrin Smith was the winner in the 15-year-old division.

Carver was the winner in the 14-year-old category while Brian Laneaux tied Amadee Collins of Seals in the 13-year-old division.

In that contest, the players were given six consecutive chances to throw from second base to a simple wooden frame with a 24-inch square interior. The target was placed near home plate.

In the base speed running contest Head won the 15-year-old division, Jeff Smith won the 14-year-old division and Pitalo was the 13-year-old winner.

Each runner was given three chances to score his fastest time in that division. Runners started from the batter's box on the third base line and rounded the bases, touching each base along the way, until reaching home plate.

In the distance hitting category, Head was the 15-year-old winner, Jeff Smith won the 14-year-old winner and Pitalo was the 13-year-old winner.

Each contestant was given six hits from the batter's box at home plate in that contest. The best effort for distance within fair territory was recorded.

Wildlife Federation warns against regulatory reform effect on hunting seasons

The Reagan Administration's proposed "regulatory reform" legislation could cut short hunting seasons for migratory birds and waterfowl and should be opposed by hunter interests, according to the National Wildlife Federation. In an emergency alert to its affiliate organizations in each state and three territories, NWF Executive Vice President Jay D. Hair said the 4.2-million member federation must "do everything in our power to stop" passage of Administration-supported legislation that claims to reduce the "red tape" associated with some federal regulations.

"We support the concept of regulatory reform," said Hair, "but this legislation would do far more than reduce red tape. It would cut some of the most important laws in this country."

The regulatory reform bill is especially pernicious, said Hair, because the programs it could most damage—such as those that establish hunting seasons—are not even mentioned in the text of the bill.

The Federation previously voiced opposition to the regulatory reform measures because of their adverse effects on health and environmental protection regulations.

Among the provisions of the bill that would be cut are those that establish hunting seasons for migratory birds and waterfowl. The bill also would cut the funding for the National Wildlife Federation's research and monitoring programs.

The bill also would cut the funding for the National Wildlife Federation's research and monitoring programs.

The bill also would cut the funding for the National Wildlife Federation's research and monitoring programs.

The bill also would cut the funding for the National Wildlife Federation's research and monitoring programs.

The Interior details the harm to migratory bird hunting that could be caused by the bills, presenting, Hair said, "another compelling reason" to oppose the legislation.

The Federation has asked other conservation organizations, including the Izaak Walton League of America, the Wildlife Management Institute, Ducks Unlimited, Inc., and the International Association of Game and Fish Agencies, to join in the effort to block the bills.

The Senate has already passed a regulatory reform bill (S.1080). In the House of Representatives, H.R. 746, is awaiting action by the Rules Committee before going to the full House for action.

The establishment of hunting seasons begins with an extensive survey of migratory bird populations conducted by the governments of the United States, Canada and Mexico, and by state conservation agencies.

Consultations also are conducted with four separate state-federal flyway councils. Out of the process come determinations of bird populations and other species characteristics which are used to set bag limits and season lengths.

Allowing Congress to review and perhaps change hunting season regulations could result in "all kinds of horror stories," said Hair.

"Seasons could be delayed or closed altogether, bag limits could be tinkered with, and anti-hunting interests would have greater opportunities to legally interfere with seasons," he said.

"The adverse impacts on wildlife and on sportsmen could be substantial. And there's much doubt as to whether the ill-defined emergency provisions in these bills would overcome the large problems that exist."

Hair said the Administration's "zeal for regulatory reform has not been tempered by responsible and reasonable considerations of all the negative implications" apparent in the "reform" bills before the Congress.

Questions on canning fruits and vegetables

Home canning is an economical and rewarding way to preserve the garden's bountiful supply and enjoy home raised produce year round.

Eleanor B. Coats, food and nutrition specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, offers answers to the most asked questions about home canning.

Q. Why should a steam-pressure canner be used for canning vegetables?

A. Higher temperatures are

A. Fruit may float because pack is too loose or sirup too heavy; or because some air remains in tissues of the fruit after heating and processing.

Q. Is it a good practice to puree and home can foods for infants?

A. If you have time and the food, this may be a worthwhile activity - except for carrots, beets and spinach. These three vegetables are more difficult to clean and sterilize than others and may pick up soil nitrates. The intestinal tracts of infants are unable to handle these soil nitrates properly. Procedures used in commercial canning of carrots, beets and spinach for infants make these foods unquestionably safe.

Q. Does ascorbic acid help keep fruits and vegetables from darkening?

A. Yes. Adding one-fourth teaspoon of crystalline ascorbic acid (vitamin C) to a quart of fruit or vegetable before it is processed retards oxidation, which is one cause of darkening of canned foods. Ascorbic acid preparations containing sugar can be used with fruits in proportions suggested by manufacturer.

required to destroy botulism bacteria in low-acid food like meats, fish, poultry and all vegetables except tomatoes. The only safe way to can these foods is by using a pressure canner, which provides temperatures (240 degrees F) higher than that of boiling water (212 degrees F).

Q. Is it safe to can without salt and sugar?

A. Salt and sugar are not necessary for safe processing of fruits and vegetables. The salt in recipes for pickled products and sugar in jams, preserves and jellies should not be reduced since the measures given are needed to provide good quality.

Q. What are important factors in preparing tomatoes for home canning?

A. Use ripe, juicy tomatoes. Never use overripe tomatoes, because tomatoes lose acidity as they mature. Tomatoes with soft or decayed areas are not suitable for canning. Be careful to remove all of the stem and green parts.

Q. Why does canned fruit sometimes float in jars?

MBC names DeMerz Pass Star student

The Mississippi Economic Council announced that David DeMerz, a senior at Bay Christian High School, has been selected as the school's Star student.

Star students are selected on the basis of academic achievement and scores on the American College Test, are considered in designation of a school's Star student.

The Student-Teacher Achievement Recognition Program encourages and promotes academic achievement among Mississippi high school students, explained Bob Hammill, president of MBC. "Top scholars are being designated as Star students in more than 50 participating schools in Mississippi. From these Star students, area winners will be selected, and the Council will award scholarships to the state's top Star students.

Each Star student is asked to designate a Star teacher, a teacher who has made the greatest contribution to the student's scholastic achievement. Designated as Star teacher was Miss Karen Fayard.

Both the Star student and the Star teacher received certificates from the Council, in addition to being eligible for competition for scholarship awards.

PRC seeks bus drivers

Pearl River College officials are seeking applications from students who are interested in driving one of the dozen PRC commuter buses.

According to Miller Hammill, dean of student affairs and transportation director, male or female freshmen and sophomore students may apply; however, student drivers must be full-time students.

Hammill said experience driving larger vehicles, such as trucks and buses is preferred but not required.

Each day, PRC transports approximately 500 students from all points within the six county district which supports Pearl River College.

The PRC district includes Jefferson Davis, Marion, Forrest, Lamar, Hancock and Pearl River Counties.

For more information contact Hammill at (601) 795-4558.

McNeese cites Fayard

Robert Fayard, of Bay St. Louis, among a total of 1,399 McNeese State University

(Lake Charles, La.) undergraduates listed on the University Honor Roll. Linda Finley, McNeese registrar, says the University Honor Roll for the second semester of the school year, Jan.-May 1982, lists all students who earned a 3.0, or "B", average while carrying the 12 or more semester hours.

Montgomery

cited by TCU

Sharon Lynn Montgomery of Diamondhead has been recognized at Texas Christian University as a TCU Scholar for the 1982 spring semester.

The honor cites those undergraduate students who achieve a 4.0 (straight A) grade-point average for a minimum of 12 semester hours study.

While "A" grades are not the only benchmark of educational accomplishment, they do mark the attainment of high academic achievement, said Dr. William McNeese, vice chancellor for academic affairs. "Sharon Lynn Montgomery has demonstrated excellence in her academic work and in her leadership of the Christian community at TCU," he said.

Graduate programs established at UNO

Two new graduate degree programs are being offered by the University of New Orleans beginning this fall, according to UNO Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs and Provost Cooper R. Mackin.

The programs are a Ph.D. in psychology with two options, applied biopsychology and applied developmental psychology, and a master of arts degree in arts administration.

Explaining the programs, which were recently approved by the Louisiana Board of Regents, Dr. Mackin says that the Ph.D. in psychology with its two options was developed in the context of the national trend to employ psychologists in non-academic settings or in settings which combine academic research with service-consultation duties.

"Both options are particularly suited to students who wish to further develop research skills and basic knowledge with a view toward applying this experience in health and human development settings," he adds.

"The arts administration field is a relatively new one, with only some 24 such programs offered in the country at the graduate level," says Dr. Mackin. "The program is designed to prepare students to serve as administrators and managers in all types of arts institutions, among them galleries, theatres, performing arts centers and community arts centers. Included in the curriculum are courses in both business and the arts, as well as an internship designed to give students practical experience in the field."

Students interested in the Ph.D. in psychology should call either Dr. Robert J. Porter, Jr. or Dr. Anne Dean at 1-504-386-3381, while those seeking information on the master of arts administration degree should contact the UNO College of Liberal Arts, 1-504-386-5386.

ANCIENT INSTRUMENTS—Playing a soprano recorder, the oldest wind instrument which is a precursor of the modern transverse flute, is Janet Michelena of Pass Christian who offered a recent lecture about Renaissance musical instruments, architecture and customs at the City-County Library Children's Summer Reading Program in Bay St. Louis. Other ancient woodwind instruments lying in a carrying case are, from left, a chalumeau, and tenor, soprano, alto and bass recorders. She noted recorded history indicates the soprano recorder was played by musicians as early as 900 A.D. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

FROM BIBLICAL TIMES—Drawing a bow across strings of a psaltery is Janet Michelena during a lecture about the Renaissance which she presented to youths participating in the City-County Library Summer Reading Program in Bay St. Louis. The Pass Christian resident and university lecturer played several ancient instruments and presented a slide show illustrating paintings and architecture of the period. LIPSCOMB ELECTED—New state officers of the Mississippi Distributive Education Clubs of America were elected during the DECA State Leadership Conference in Biloxi recently. They include Annabelle Lipscomb, District IV vice-president, Bay Senior High School, Bay St. Louis.

Speech and language at two years requires special adult understanding

You're having morning coffee with a neighbor. Suddenly your two-year-old rushes in to tell you something important.

"Sam broke too me ever!" Since he's not a fluent speaker yet and the urgency of the situation interferes with intelligibility, you don't know what he's trying to convey to you. What to do?

Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, first gives these hints about what not to do.

Don't belittle the child with criticism, "Who can understand you when you talk like that?"

Don't threaten him, "If you don't talk better no one will ever understand you."

Don't bribe him, "If you say it nicely, you can have a cookie."

Don't command him, "Say it like this so we know what you mean."

Don't overprotect him, "Go out and play and we'll talk about it later."

Now, what to do:

Echo what he has said insofar as you can and preface the unintelligible part with one of the "wh" words: Youngster: "Sam broke too me ever." You: "Sam broke what?"

Assure him that you truly understand his feelings (even if you do not understand his speech). This is very reassuring to a child. None of the even, constant, and predictable support of a trusted source, accompanied by simple feedback, allows you to understand how you feel about the situation. A young child, as a consequence, individual with a sense of personal dignity, which can be hurt or gratified will result in cooperative behavior.

At about two years, a youngster has increased speech and language comprehension, but still understands only concrete and practical words and statements.

He has no meaning for him; he's imitating what he's heard without really understanding.

He uses words which he himself creates. This occurs when he wants to say something and he doesn't know the appropriate word. Many children enjoy their own creations and do a lot of it, combining interesting sounds and phrases.

The pronouns "mine" and "me" are in use but he refers to himself by his given name instead of using "I."

He loves to hear stories about himself.

When he talks or "tells a story" he sings songs, his sentences. He may, on the very fluent in telling his experiences, but he has a sense of "pastness" — he's there.

Income adjustments made in school lunch program

The maximum income a family can earn and still have children qualify for free or reduced price school meals will go up 10 percent on July 1.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Mary Jarratt said the change is a result of the annual cost-of-living adjustment made by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to help people keep up with inflation.

Under the adjustment, the income limit for free meals eligibility, which is set by Congress at 130 percent of the federal poverty line, will go from $10,990 to $12,090 for a

Coast Electric employees practice pole top rescue

Charlie Stewart checks for a heart beat on victim Guy Nécaise as lineman Bernard Mutter rigs up the safety line.

Employees of Coast Electric in Bay St. Louis practiced three types of pole-top rescue behind the company's main office on Main Street recently.

David Young, training and safety instructor for the Electrical Workers Association in Jackson, conducted the session.

Young noted the purpose of the course is to instruct linemen how to take a man down off the pole as quickly as possible so life saving techniques can be administered.

He noted injuries may occur for many reasons, including electrical shock, exhaustion or heart attack.

Linemen for the company practiced three different types of rescue.

The first type of rescue involved a pole with a cross tie.

In this case, a rope was looped over the tie and the victim was lowered to the ground.

A second type of rescue involved a pole with no cross tie in which a line was looped over an insulator and then wrapped around the pole.

In both cases the victim was lowered by linemen who were already on the ground.

A third type of rescue involved using a bucket truck to remove the victim from the pole.

One part of the session concerned administering artificial respiration to a victim while on the pole.

Royce Shiyon, safety coordinator for Coast Electric, noted this rescue technique might be necessary if a victim could not be lowered to the ground quickly.

The technique might also be necessary if the victim was not noticed until several minutes after an accident.

In that case, artificial breathing would be required as soon as possible since brain damage can occur from lack of oxygen within three minutes.

Shiyon noted the pole-type rescue is practiced once every year by company employees.

Other facets of safety are discussed in monthly meetings with EPA officials.
